This division is arbitrary and excludes many important expeditions among them those of the fourteenth and fifteenth centuries. In reality the Crusades continued until the end of the seventeenth century the Crusade of Lepanto occurring in 1571 that of Hungary in 1664 and the Crusade of the Duke of Burgundy to Candia in 1669. A more scientific division is that Crusades lasted a long time they started in the 11th century and went on down to the 16th century the Crusades were against the Muslims in the Iberian Peninsula and also against people in the Baltic and the Mongols the Crusades were also called when Christians fought against political opponents of the Church. The first Crusade resulted in the formation of the Crusader States in the Levant the Eastern Mediterranean which were initially governed and in small part populated by settlers from Europe. Crusading in Northern and Eastern Europe led to the expansion of kingdoms like Denmark and Sweden as well as the creation of brand new ones.
